HONGKONG, BATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1893. WHILE the police campaign against ownerless dogs is no doubt looked upon by most people in the colony as a wise and necessary proceeding, it would appour that there are some people who strongly disapprove of the manner in which it is being conducted. Animals which in the estimation of their owners are unique and priceless canine specimens have suffered the indignity of being taken into custody by unsympathetic lukongs and placed with the soum of their race in the common dog pound. Therefore the owners of these outraged Towsers, have said bitter things against the police, speaking of them almost as if they were possessed Ly a strange desire to exterminate all the valuable and respectably-connected dogs in the colony and leave the worthless nondescripts. It is one more case of expecting too much from the police. A dog that has brought neither a collar nor en owner out with him, and is unable to give any account of himself, is the legitimate prey of the dog-hunting lukong. If the celestial minion of the law is unable to distinguish a dog that is out on business from one that is 'on the loose, or if he cannot see the owner's respectability and importance reflected in what to a casual observer is merely a rakish and abandoned-looking animal, there may yet be some excuse for him. The lakong, like Horace Greeley's coachman, has got his orders, and if he has not also got common sense and tact and discrimination it is because nature did not give him these qualities and because they cannot be imported to and bottled by ourselves, thus enabling us all, there is really little to grumble these orders are being carried out. We take a more civilised view of the dog nuisance here than they do in the Straits. We do not send out a gang of butchers to batter out the brains of stray dogs on the public streets. The Case. Per Bos law affecting dogs in the colony is, we should think, pretty generally understood. Ordinance 14 of 1845, section 4, says 'It shall be lawful for any constable belonging to the Police Force to destroy any very Fine Old Vintage. 14 1.25 dog which shall be found straying or wandering about during the day-time without any owner, and not wening a collar with the name and address of the owner inscribed thereon; and such constable is hereby further authorised to destroy any dog which shall; be found straying or wandering about between the hours of ten oclock at night and gun-fire in the morning.' This might mean that the constable could shoot 1.00 or club a vagrant dog whenever and wherever he found it, a power which it is very undesirable that he should White Seal Capsule 12 1.10 postess, except in the case of rabid dogs. A departmental order was made in 1876, however, to the effect that, instead of 1.25 immediately destroying stray dogs the Per Case. Per Case. Police should detain them in the pound, 1 doz 2 doz. and if claimed within three days return Quarts. It is not improbable that 8.50 the police in exercising their powers under the Ordinance during the present raid on ownerless and stray dogs may have made some mistakes—and it would have been remarkable if they had notbut it is quite certain that they have not deserved the wholesale condemnation which they have met with from some quarters, and it is only common fairness to them to contradict certain state. ments that have been made publicly against them. It is not the case, as stated by the Daily Press the other day, that the law against ownerless and stray dogs had become a dead letter and Case Per Bot. that the Police are now acting without any law whatever to justify them. One objectionable action on the part of the police, according to our contam-1.75 porary, is the taking of these dogs all through the dirty slums, which are infested with diseased Chinese dogs, to 2.50 the West Point Station.' Now, where ther the route by which the captured dogs are taken to the pound may be properly described as infested with diseased Chinese dogs or not-we must say that such a description seems to us a wild exaggeration—we hardly see how there can be ony risk of contamination in view of the fact that the captured dogs are carried in baskets. We are assured that the police are not following the most vicious system of giving a 1.00 reward to the street coolies for dogs that are taken by them to the station, and

ONE of the London correspondents of the Yorkshire Post tells the following story of M: de Lesseps, which, he says, is of zndoubted authenticity, his informant having been present at the scene described :- When Lord Wolseley was at Ismailia in 1882, he had reason to suppose, from information received, that M. de Lesseps was in communicution with Arabi Pasha. In consequence, a close watch was kept upon the movements of le grand Francais, with the result that he was detected in the act of telegraphing to the rebel leader advising him to attack the British force at ones. If the message had been sent, and the advice followed, there can be so doubt a heavy blow would have been inflicted upon the Euglish force. News of the incident was wired home at the time. but, presumably for reasons of international diplomacy, was never made public. M. de Lessens, however, was kept practically under look and key for some time afterwards, and was only allowed to drive out hose a day in a carriage under military escent.

THE Spectator has the following note on the latest indication at Homestead of the approaching industrial millenhium :- Wo confess we did not believe the story that some of the strikers at Messrs Carnegie's Homestead Mills had endeavoured to poison the son-Unionists. The devotees, we thought, of the new gospel of Labour are capable of violence even to the shedding of blood, but they are not capable of so dastardly a crime as poisoning the food of their 'brothers' merely because rather than be hungry, they accept lower wages. The evidence, however, accumulater. Patrick Gallagher, the cook who originally revealed the plot, and his assistant. Davidson, have been arrested, and the Coroner has ordered the bodies of all who have recently died at the mills to be exhumed and examined. Mr Christie, an official of the Carnegia Company, affirms that the practice was carried on on a great scale, that thirtytwo men have died, and that two thousand more have eickened, some of whom will give evidence at the inquest. The poison employed is supposed to have been arsenio but there is a suspicion in some cases of the use of croton-oil, which the prisoners probably fancied would produce illness and excessive weakness, but not death. Another case of the same practice has been discovered in West-Virginia, Wo do not know that poison is worse morally than dynamite; but its use always suggests a meaner and more devilish kind of hate. Clearly the Unionists and Free Labourers hate one another more than nations at war do, for the latter always avoid the use of poison. And yet we are told that in the industral millennium which is coming, war will be extinct, and all mankind will love one another !

We give below a summary of the export trade of the two staples of the Philippine Islands—hemp and augar—for the past year through the three principal ports (Manila, Cebu and floile). THE DANGERS OF 'KISSING THE BOOK.

There has been some correspondence the Home papers lately about the English manner of taking the oath in Court, by kisning the Book, which many people regard as langerous from a hygicnic point of view. The outer covering of the sacred volume which does duty in the oath-taking coremony in the law courts is often, if not generally, rather repulsive in appearance and it appears that to put one's lips to it may not only outrage one's sense of 'cleanliness but be a positive danger to one's health. The British Medical Journal in a mile and a half, time 3.42. From communications we have received. and from reports which have appeared in the daily papers, it would appear that a considerable number of medical men have recently taken, as we have suggested they should, the course of demanding to be sworn in the Scotch manner, with uplifted hand, As, however, the provisions of the Oaths lot and form of the Scotch oath do not seem to be familiar to some magistrates, judges, and judicial officers, it may be as well to set out the facts precisely.

The fifth section of the Oaths declares, without any qualification, that any perion to whoman oath is administered destres to awear with unlifted hand, in the form and manner in which an oath is usually administered in Scotland, he shall be permitted to do so, and the oath shall be administered to him in such form and manner without further question' (51 and 52 Viot., c. 42, s. 5).

This enactment applies not only to all forms of the witness oath, whether in civil or criminal courts or before coroners, but also to the awearing of affidavits before a commissioner, and to the sweering in of jurguand to all forms of oaths of office-in one of the best movers among the subscrip- fully administered in Great Britain and Ireland.
